Producer Declares the Motion Pictures Were to Be Shipped to Canada.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Henry Sunshine, president of the Sunshine Film Co., which held the rights to the Tunney-Dempsey fight film, was arrested last night by United States Marshal John O'Connell as he was loading nine sets of films and one set of negatives of the fight into an airplane.

Sunshine declared the films were to be shipped to Canada for exhibition there. The warrants charged the films were to be transported into Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Attorneys for Sunshine said they will make a test case. An injunction was sought against the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice to obtain release of the films so they may be shipped into Canada and other foreign countries.

WISHING VISITS EMENCEAU WITH CHIEFS OF LEGION

Time Premier Warmly Welcomes General, Commander Spafford and Processors.

LEGATES BEGIN EXODUS FROM PARIS

Remain for Sightseeing and Private Calls — Air Carnival Is Held at Le Bourget Field.

PARIS, Sept. 24.—While the affairs of the American Legion convention are over, those delegates who have not left for battlefields are kept occupied with private receptions, luncheons and dinners. Gen. Pershing could leave without receiving some of the officers and men who were under him. It was a cozy reunion. The general recalled memories, pleasant and sad, and gave a brief cheery speech.

The little daughter of an American ex-officer who was unable to present at the convention gave a beautiful basket of flowers on behalf of her father, General Gouraud, one-armed hero here, had a half hour's talk with some of his American comrades.

The Virginia delegation took the opportunity to call at the Elysee and deliver a flag sent to President Roumieu as a gift from the Government and people of their state.

Emenceau Receives Leaders.
Former commander of the 1st Division, General Emenceau alone were received by Emenceau in his temporary Paris home. As soon as the latter sighted him, he clasped the visitor in his arms and they were deeply moved.

Then the familiar "demon," humorously inclined, in Clemenceau's office, he asked in English, "I came to see you and am glad to see you younger than ever."

"I am 56 years young. How old is my friend Chauncey Dewey?"

Then he took the general by the hand and did a few lively dances despite his age.

Savage Honored.
Howard P. Savage, former commander of the legion, was presented with a souvenir tablet by M. Scapellato, president of the Association of French Veterans.

The organizations which have been so much for the comfort of the legionnaires during their Paris stay are busy clearing up the "mess." The American Legion, the Red Cross, the Knights of Columbus and the American Army club today, but the information bureaus, telegraph and photographic agencies and other services will keep open a few days longer for the convenience of the legionnaires returning from the battlefields or from overseas.

The Salvation Army workers during the week served 100,000 cups of coffee and 125,000 sandwiches, requiring a ton of ham and pounds of butter. Forty thousand doughnuts were made by the night shift in two bakeries. The products of Columbus distributed 100,000 cigarettes and 200,000 cups of soap, and stamped 750,000 postcards.

Thirty French and American Red Cross nurses directed by Miss Hardwick of Washington, D. C., treated 1400 cases, ranging from minor ailments to severe, infected wounds and sprains. There were only two hospital cases, none serious.

Flying Show for Legion.
A squadron of 100 aviators yesterday flew over Le Bourget flying field in honor of the Legion.

The Bourget flying show was the greatest that has been put on here in a long time. Fast pursuit planes, biplanes, heavy bombers and scout planes obscured the sky for nearly an hour. Speedy battle planes took off like American champions in the hop-step-and-jump yards down the runway and, after a short run, they looped the loop, performed the barrel roll, and, at the last, they dived into the hands of the 20,000 spectators, including many Legionnaires.

COMMUNIST TROOPS SAID TO HAVE SEIZED TOWN

Reported to Be Marching on Chaoan, 40 Miles From Swatow.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The Hongkong Telegraph reports that the Chinese forces have occupied Chaoan (possibly Tienpo, near Hongchow), and are marching toward Chaoan, 40 miles from Swatow. Many members of the Swatow Garrison are declared to be fleeing toward Hongkong.

FORMER MAYOR E. A. NOONAN SHOOTING HIMSELF TO DEATH IN HOTEL ROOM; 77 YEARS OLD

Body Found Amid Relics of Public Life and Note Says "Paltry Prize Is Hardly Worth the Cost."

Edward A. Noonan, 77 years old, Mayor of St. Louis from 1889 to 1893 and a picturesque figure in local politics, shot himself to death yesterday in his room at the Park Hotel, Thirteenth and Olive streets.

Surrounded by relics of his public life, he was found on the floor of his room, No. 324, at 6:20 p. m. yesterday in his room at the Park Hotel, Thirteenth and Olive streets.

When the hotel manager sent a porter to learn why he had not left his room during the day. There was a bullet wound in the right temple, and a revolver, with one discharged cartridge, beside the body. He had been dead about six hours. No one heard the shot.

Note Found on Dresser.

Noonan was in ill health and financially straitened, according to friends. He left a note, on a dresser, which read as follows:

"My last two cultivated, cultured and kindly friends are Mr. and Mrs. Warren, managers of this hotel. I will thank the Mayor's badge I have planned on my coat. My relatives and other friends, the employees of Mr. Lyman T. Hay, as well as myself, I am thinking of. Mr. Molte and James Gallagher have assisted me. I hope the good ladies of the library will think well of me."

"When all is won that all desire to win, the paltry prize is hardly worth the cost."

"E. A. NOONAN."

EDWARD A. NOONAN, Mayor of St. Louis, 1889-1893.

Hospital last July, suffering from neuritis due to an automobile accident in 1917. His health had been impaired also by grief over the death of his wife in 1920, and his son, E. A. Noonan Jr., a young lawyer, eight years previous.

He is survived by a sister, Miss Mary Noonan, who is connected with St. Ann's Hospital, and two daughters, Mrs. Guy Goltzman, 210 South Euclid avenue, and Mrs. Walter S. Gemmer, 4475 Pershing avenue.

The funeral will be at 10 a. m. Monday from an undertaking establishment at 1710 North Grand boulevard. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

BORN IN READING, PA.

Born and reared in Reading, Pa., Edward Aloysius Noonan was graduated from the University of Law in 1879, and in the fall of that year settled in St. Louis, which he selected as a suitable field for an ambitious young man. His first law office was on the north side of Market street, between Third and Fourth streets.

He was quick at making friends and clients. His ready wit and democratic ways helped him along in politics, and in 1879 he was elected Assistant Circuit Attorney, then an elective office. He served four years, and two years more of a second term, resigning to become Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction. After serving a four-year term and two years of a second term on the bench, he resigned, this time to become the Democratic nominee for Mayor. The nominating convention was held in the old St. Louis Exposition Building, where the Public Library now is.

In the election, he defeated the wealthy Republican nominee, Col. James Gay Butler — and Judge Noonan became Mayor Noonan. He succeeded David Mayer, Mayor of St. Louis, 1889. Construction of the present city hall was begun during Mayor Noonan's administration.

MARRIED IN 1876.

In 1876 Noonan married Miss Margaret Brennan, a sister of Dr. William N. Brennan. During his 16 years in public office and for years afterward his home was a two-story brick house at 1835 Madison street.

In 1922 Noonan was the Democratic nominee for Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, but was defeated with the rest of the Democratic ticket.

MAN IMPRISONED UNDER DEBTORS' LAW RELEASED

Petition Filed in Court Says Accident for Which Judgment Was Given Was Not Malicious.

Manuel Gonzalez, East St. Louis coal dealer, who was imprisoned in St. Clair County Jail at Belleville Thursday night under the ancient Illinois debtors' law, was released under $1000 bond by Judge Weber yesterday, after a petition in his behalf had been filed in County Court.

Mrs. Florence Hagen of 447 North Twenty-second street, East St. Louis, had invoked the jail petition of the debtor law after Gonzalez failed to pay a court judgment of $1500, which resulted from an automobile collision in which she was injured. At the time of the collision, she had been driving a car on an errand of mercy, taking a friend who had been hurt in a fight to a hospital.

The old debtors' law provides that, in case judgments in personal injury suits where malice is shown are not paid, the defendant may be imprisoned for a period not to exceed six months, the jail bond of $1 a day to be paid by the defendant.

Mrs. Hagen had advanced $14 for two weeks' board and was prepared to pay $1 a day to keep Gonzalez in jail for the entire six months, her attorney said.

It was said the collision was not an act of malice on his part and, for that reason, he could not be held. A preliminary hearing before Judge Weber is set for Oct. 5.

SOLVENCY OF LOGAN GRAIN FIRM UNDER INVESTIGATION

Father and Son Suspended From Doing Business on Merchants' Exchange.

Officials of the Merchants' Exchange, who yesterday suspended T. M. Logan and his son, William R. Logan, doing business on the exchange as the Logan Grain Co., from membership pending an investigation of the firm's solvency, had not completed their investigation today and will make no official announcement until they have done so.

Notice of the suspension, without explanation, was given yesterday. The suspension is said to have grown out of refusal by banks to honor checks aggregating $10,000, $21,000 given by the Logans in payment for shipments of grain.

An attachment suit against the Logans was filed today by the Merchants' Grain Co. Corporation on a claim of $1000. The suit has been the amount of a check for that amount given by the Logans in payment for 60,000 pounds of oats on Sept. 19 and returned to the bank marked "insufficient funds."

FEDERAL COMMISSIONER TO SPEAK AT RADIO SHOW

Announcement of Winners in Singing Contest Will Be Another Feature Tonight.

An address on the broadcasting situation by Federal Radio Commissioner Henry A. Bellows, and a song recital by the two winners of the St. Louis district contest, will be featured at the radio show at Hotel Chase, 1225 Morrison avenue, which will be held tonight and Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

A crowd of 14,000 persons last night more than made up the single weekly attendance of Thursday evening and insured that this year's attendance set a record for radio expositions in St. Louis. The record attendance, and the keen interest displayed by the crowd in the radio exhibits, are taken by distributors and dealers to indicate that predictions of heavy radio sales this fall and winter will be well founded.

FOOT - PROPELLED AIRPLANE EXPERIMENT HURT IN CRASH

Machine Was Being Towed by Auto in Effort to Get It Started at Cocoa, Fla.

By the Associated Press.
COCOA, Fla., Sept. 24.—A nose diving from an altitude of five feet by his wing-glapping, man-propelled flying contraption was towed behind an automobile in an effort to get it started on a flight, George White, Cocoa experimenter, suffered injuries which left him unconscious half an hour, Thursday.

White said later that his head struck some part of the machine in the time that he added that he expected to be back at his experiments in a few days. The ornithopter suffered considerable damage in the crash.

Friends of the experimenter have declared here that on one occasion he kept the ornithopter in the air almost a mile under his own foot power. The machine, bird shaped and with movable wings covered with a cellulose sheet, but three thousands of an inch thick, has a 25-foot wing spread and an eight-foot fuselage. It weighs about 100 pounds.

Aid Asked in Hunt for Boy.

Police have been asked to search for Joseph, 15-year-old son of Louis Intaglietta, of 2227 Davis street, who left home last Saturday and has not returned. The boy is about 5 feet 6 inches tall and walks with a peculiar slouch. His parents have offered a small reward for information.

SAYS FORTUNE TELLERS ROBBED HIM OF $160

Fruit Dealer Tells Police Gypsy Women Got Money Through Ruse.

Joseph Bilobram, proprietor of a fruit store at 1636 Market street, reported to the police yesterday that on Sept. 10 he passed a store at 718 North Twelfth street, there in seeing two gypsy women and two gypsy children. The women sang out to him, he said, declaring that he was going to have a lot of bad luck, but that if he came in and let them tell his fortune his evil future would be turned into one of a most rosy hue.

Bilobram, being a cautious fellow, who was taking no chance with the future, stopped, turned, and walked in. The gypsies asked him if he had any money. He told them he had $160 with him. They took the money, put it in a small bag, and then they went on their way. He followed them for a short distance, but they did not touch it for three days, and then returned to them, his money would be doubled. Three days later he went to the Twelfth street address. The store was deserted. Bilobram opened the sack and found, metaphorically, that it was holding it. For in the sack, instead of $320, was a wad of paper which was wrapped around one single solitary dollar bill.

Bilobram conducted a search for his deceivers until yesterday when, pessimistic as to the fortunate outcome of his quest, he took up the situation with the police.

NEWSPAPER MAN SLAIN IN PUBLIC BATHHOUSE

Three Arrested in Connection With Death of Frank L. O'Connell in New York.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Frank L. O'Connell, a copy editor in the sport department of the New York World, was found dead yesterday morning in a public bathhouse at 132 Evered baths. Blood stains on his pillow started a police inquiry that resulted in the arrest of three young men, patrons of the baths.

The prisoners were held at police headquarters on a technical charge of homicide pending an autopsy. They said they were Nicholas Arletano, 22 years old, Amerigo de Giovanni, 22, and Anthony de Lucia, 24, a prize fighter.

The three men arrived at the baths about 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning and registered under false names. They went out, but returned about 6:30 o'clock. O'Connell, who had been at his desk in the World, handling copy on the Tunney-Dempsey fight until 4 o'clock in the morning, registered at the baths at 5:50 a. m.

A bed was assigned to the editor in the first floor dormitory and he went to sleep at once. Abraham Siegel told the police that about 8 o'clock he was awakened by sounds of an altercation and found O'Connell in an argument with the three men who were later arrested.

There are two police theories as to what might have caused the altercation. The first is that the prisoner, who had been assigned to beds on the second floor dormitory, were members of a gang that went about robbing sleepers in Turkish baths.

The second theory is that O'Connell, whose bed was the last in line and next to the lavatory, might have remonstrated with the three men for making too much noise in that room and that one of them assaulted him. They had been marked as quarrelsome and, on leaving the first floor dormitory, argued with a night porter, Frank Smith, and one of them struck Smith in the eye. Smith has identified De Lucia as his assailant.

O'Connell was managing editor of the Morning Telegraph before joining the World staff about two years ago.

EX-CONVICT ARRESTED AFTER THIRD CRASH IN STOLEN CAR

Two Other Machines and Finally a Rider Police Attracted by Last Collision.

Following a collision with another automobile at Sarah and Olive streets shortly after midnight, a car occupied by three men, turned south on Sarah street, sped two blocks to McPherson avenue and west on McPherson until it struck another automobile parked in front of 4431. It came off the wheels and the driver proceeded across the grass plots until it crashed against the home of Louis Rothgesser at 4447 McPherson avenue.

The three men abandoned the machine and ran, but one was overtaken by Patrolman Kraemer, who had been attracted by the noise of the collision with the parked car. The man arrested said, "Before going to Crawford County, however, George was associated briefly with Group Chief Dillon and his prohibition agents in St. Louis."

There appears to be a wide variance in the stories told by George and Group Chief Dillon as to the reason for their parting. George says it was because Dillon wouldn't give him a job as a sure-enough prohibition agent until he had passed civil service examinations. Dillon says it was because he caught George drinking up a lot of liquor worth $10,000. George told the reporters, "and the agent in charge gave me a letter of recommendation."

Word of George's prowess already was filtering down to Crawford County by letters George wrote his cousin, Denny Mullins at Leesburg. Before going to Crawford County, however, George was associated briefly with Group Chief Dillon and his prohibition agents in St. Louis.

Six months ago George Rival Davis arrived in Crawford County. His arrival created a great deal of excitement and some consternation. He had been a member of the Federal Prohibition Enforcement Bureau all its own before and the Crawford County bootleggers were not sure they liked the innovation of a "good citizen" in the county, however, rejoiced that an upstanding young man like George had arrived to save weaker creatures from alcoholic sin. Ladies of the W. C. T. U. stopped George on the street and shook his hand.

Arrested His Sponsor.

Denny Mullins, George's cousin, acted as chief publicity agent. He took George to the county fair in August and introduced him around as the "Federal man from St. Louis." George admitted today that he did nothing to correct this impression. Just to make the impression stronger he arrested Mullins and charged him with possession of liquor.

"I wanted to show them that I could enforce the law without fear or favor," George explained. "Of course, Denny didn't like it much."

George's reputation grew so rapidly that Sheriff Encke came over to Leesburg from St. Louis, the county seat, and invited George to help him in raids. George and the Sheriff were vigorous and made 20 cases against Crawford County bootleggers, not counting places raided where no evidence was found.

Unfortunately, one of the men George arrested was Henry Nobbe, who runs a tourist's camp at Cuba. Nobbe sent for a St. Louis lawyer, Russell Horsfield, last Wednesday at a preliminary hearing before a Justice of the Peace in Cuba. Horsfield unmasked George. He got George on the witness stand

Crawford County Raider An Impostor, Is Arrested

Youth, Who Dedicated Life "To Putting Down Liquor Rebellion," Held for Pistol-Toting.

When George Davis walked down the street in Leesburg or Steelville, Crawford County, Missouri, bootleggers shivered in their booties. "That," said everybody, "is George Davis. He's a Federal man. He'll raid you."

It was so. George Davis raided. He had a big revolver which he stuck in his pants with the grip showing. He had a piece of paper on which was written: "George Davis, Prohibition Agent." He let it be known that he had come to Crawford County for a clean-up. And when George Davis said "clean up" he scowled and shook his revolver under a bootlegger's nose.

Raiders? It beat all how George could raid. He never bothered about search warrants or technicalities. Blunt, blunt and George would have the door of a man's house kicked in before he could say "boo." If bootleggers or other citizens did say "Boo" George wasn't afraid. He had taken a correspondence school course in detecting. Twenty homes in Crawford County felt the iron hand of its one-man Prohibition Enforcement Bureau.

George is at Police Headquarters here today. He is charged with carrying a concealed weapon. He had no business carrying a big revolver or "business" bootleggers or raiding in Crawford County homes. He is not a prohibition agent at all. The joke is on Crawford County, but by the time Crawford County gets through prosecuting him the joke may be on George.

Reporters who visited the "Scourge of Crawford County" in his cell found a country youth of 22 who wears his hair slick, and sports patent leather shoes and a black string tie. He said he was George Rival Davis, and in his way, he said, modestly, he was a reformer. He had dedicated his life to reform several years ago at Valley Park, which is his home.

"My personal observation is," George said, "that liquor ruins the lives of young men and women. I resolved to devote my life to putting down the liquor rebellion."

For two years he studied detecting at a detective correspondence school and then set out to clean up Valley Park. It was a big job, George said, but with the aid of Federal prohibition agents in St. Louis, for whom he acted as an informer, George cleaned up the place. A coalition of bootleggers, so George said, knowing that as long as George Rival Davis patrolled Valley Park their profits were not, organized to slay him.

Turned Ohio Youth to Sheriff of St. Louis, for whom he acted as an informer, George cleaned up the place. A coalition of bootleggers, so George said, knowing that as long as George Rival Davis patrolled Valley Park their profits were not, organized to slay him.

Discretion being the better part of valor, George drifted away from there. He went to Ohio and acted as an informer for prohibition agents.

"I captured a boat cargo of liquor worth $10,000," George told the reporters, "and the agent in charge gave me a letter of recommendation."

and made him look sick with demands for his credentials as a prohibition agent. George returned to St. Louis and yesterday was arrested at the Federal Building on complaint of Horsfield.

Plenty of Charges Possible.

Sheriff Encke, much chagrined at having been impressed by George, arrived here today to take the prisoner back to Crawford County. George can't be prosecuted for impersonating a Federal officer unless it is shown that he collected money under that pretense. But he might be prosecuted on the following charges: Carrying concealed weapon; flourishing a deadly weapon; trespass; peace disturbance; malicious slander; assault and battery; mayhem.

Sheriff Encke, it is said, believes George ought to be prosecuted on all of them.

EX-DEPUTY ARRESTS TWO BOYS AT DICE WITHOUT AUTHORITY

County Prosecutor Lectures Young Gamblers and Turns Them Loose.

The commission of Hugh Madden as a Special Deputy Sheriff of St. Louis County expired three years ago, but Madden, who now is a watchman at the Normandy Golf Club, forgot all about it when he came upon two 16-year-old caddies shooting craps with a pair of pencil-marked cubes they had whittled from a board.

Madden found the boys back of a clump of shrubbery, and immediately seized them and a nickel, all the money in sight.

He loaded them into an automobile and took them to the Sheriff's office in Clayton, where he asked that they be held on a charge of gambling. Chief Deputy Sheriff Dodd questioned Madden's authority to make an arrest and Madden produced his ancient Deputy's badge. Dodd ruled it out of date and confiscated it.

Prosecuting Attorney Mueller lectured the boys and ordered them released.

POLICEMAN'S SON HELD WHEN MOTHER GETS BOND RELEASE

Youth, Previously Arrested by Father for Stealing Auto, Created Disturbance at Home.

John Broyles, 17 years old, of 6298 Magnolia avenue, arrested July 30 last by his father, Patrolman Broyles, charged with stealing an automobile and driving carelessly, was in Police Court today, charged with disturbing the peace of his mother, Mrs. Nellie Broyles.

The mother refused to prosecute, and the peace disturbance charge was dismissed. However, the mother asked to be relieved of a bond which she furnished when the son was arrested last July. This was done, and the son was committed to jail to stay there, unless he obtains another bondsman, until Oct. 4 when the automobile theft case is docketed for trial.

The parents said John created a disturbance yesterday when rebuked for staying out late on two successive nights.

Bridegroom Shot at Charivari.

LOUISIANA, Mo., Sept. 24.—Hurley Holliday, 22 years old, bridegroom, was accidentally shot in the left side by Francis Long, a friend, at a charivari last night at the home of his father, I. M. Holliday, a farmer near here. Holliday was removed to a Keokuk hospital.

18 DRY AGENTS IN NEWARK DISMISSED

Discharge Forebushes General "Clean-Up" in New Jersey, Lowman Says.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—With the dismissal yesterday of 18 prohibition agents at Newark, plans went forward for a general clean-up of New Jersey, regarded by Treasury officials as presenting practically every problem of prohibition enforcement found in the country.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of prohibition enforcement, said the agents were dismissed for the good of the service. He also announced two other men operating out of the Newark office had resigned. The changes, the first of such magnitude in the State, came after the meeting between A. J. Hanlon, administrator of New Jersey, and officials of the Prohibition Bureau.

A special report is understood to be in the course of preparation by a member of the intelligence unit of the bureau, who was detailed for several months in the New Jersey district to investigate reports of unsatisfactory conditions.

The dismissals were said by Lowman to be part of a countrywide "clean-up from within," initiated by him upon taking office, and is in line with the policy to obtain more investigators and fewer agents.

Dismissal of the agents is the first step of reorganization taken by Hanlon, who took office July 1.

PIN VALUED AT $800 STOLEN

Woman Reports Loss of Ornament Set With 25 Diamonds.

Burglars who entered the home of Mrs. Mayme Engel, 4932 Forest Park avenue, yesterday, took a bar pin set with 25 diamonds and valued at $800.

When Mrs. Engel returned to her home at 2:30 p. m., after having been down town, she discovered that burglars had entered by breaking the glass of a rear door and then unlatching the chain.

FIGHT DECISION STANDS, BOXING OFFICIALS RULE

Tunney - Dempsey Bout Was Conducted According to Laws of Illinois, Righimer Announces.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—The decision giving Gene Tunney the victory over Jack Dempsey stands and the State Athletic Commission "will not consider a reversal," John C. Righimer, chairman of the commission, declared in a statement today.

Righimer's statement apparently closed the door to any further possibility of action on a protest by Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's manager. The commission made it clear that it would give either Flynn or Dempsey a hearing at any time on any score, but it was equally clear that the boxing authorities had no idea of reversing the verdict given in the ring at Soldier Field Thursday night.

As far as this commission is concerned, the bout was conducted in accordance with the law and the rules as promulgated by the commission, together with instructions to the referees and timekeepers before the bout, and such instructions were given to the managers and contestants in the ring before the bout started by the referee. The referee's decision, as rendered, will stand and this commission will consider a reversal of said decision.

It was said at the office of the commission that no further word had been received from Flynn relative to further protests.

FOURTH CHESS GAME FOR TITLE ADJUDGED AFTER FORTY MOVES

By the Associated Press.
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 24.—The fourth game in the world's championship chess match between Jose R. Capablanca of Cuba, the titleholder, and Alexander Alekhine of Russia, the challenger, was adjudged shortly before midnight last night after 40 moves.

The game at adjournment was so even that experts were divided in their opinions, some thought Capablanca had a slight advantage, but the majority inclined to the opinion that a draw would result when play is resumed this evening.

Dumping Jockey L. Gering at the very first turn. Five Sixty finished the mile and 70 yards in a race at Hawthorne yesterday, riderless but still out in front.

This turned the official verdict over to the second horse, Transfer, known hereabouts as a consistent failure. In more than 100 starts, Transfer never won a race until today, and finished in the money but once. Gering was not badly hurt. Jockey Lee Hardy was "set down" for the rest of the meeting for causing the spill.

FLYERS OF ARMY, NAVY, MARINES TO RACE AT SPOKANE

Free-for-All Pursuit, Plane Event Feature of Today's Program at the National Air Meet.

By the Associated Press. SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 24.—Eugene Detmer of Tarrytown, Pa., in a Travel-Air biplane, won the Western Flying Trophy free-for-all race for low-powered planes designed for two or more passengers. The race was the first of today's program of the national air meet at Feltz Field, the municipal airport.

Army, Navy and Marine Corps flyers were matched in a free-for-all pursuit plane race. Keen rivalry existed. Three flying fields were represented—Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich.; Kelly Field, Tex., and Wright Field, Dayton, O. Curtiss Hawks are being used by the army and Marine Corps pilots, and Boeings by the navy. Some of these pursuit planes have been known to make 275 miles an hour. James Ray of Willow Grove, Pa., won individual honors yesterday, finishing first in two events—the Seattle Chamber of Commerce Trophy race and the Aviation Town and Country Club, with first prizes of $1000 and $500, respectively, besides the trophies. E. E. Ballough of Chicago and C. W. Holman of St. Paul, took second and third in the same races.

The navy out flew the marines in the first military race yesterday. Three San Diego base planes taking the first three places, and two Marine Corps ships from Quantico, Va., finishing fourth and fifth.

EXPLOSION AT ARMY ORDNANCE DEPOT ROUTS 150 FAMILIES

Fire Near Baltimore Extinguished Without Serious Damage; Detonations Rock Countryside. BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 24.—Fire originating in an ammunition pit at the Curtis Bay army ordnance depot near here, exploded shells on a loading platform nearby, and spread panic among residents of the neighborhood, but was brought under control without serious damage to the reservation last night. No one was hurt. Ammunition magazines, containing thousands of tons of explosives several thousand yards away were quickly sealed by soldiers, which, with the assistance of Baltimore firemen and a fire boat extinguished the flames in less than two hours.

The fire first became known outside the reservation when a series of sharp explosions shook nearby houses. About 150 families fled hastily collected belongings into automobiles and fled toward Baltimore, but returned when it became clear that there was no danger of the fire spreading.

KAISER PERSUADED TO GIVE UP CROWN BY VON MALTZAN

Wilhelm First Insulted Late Envoys, Calling Him One of Rascals of Foreign Office.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Baron Ago von Maltzan, who yesterday lost his life in an airplane accident, in 1918 was assigned to the task of persuading William II to sign his abdication.

He was insulted before the Emperor yielded to the request. It was revealed today by an intimate friend of the late Ambassador who made a detailed entry in his diary immediately after the Baron had told him of the episode. The Baron was German Ambassador to the United States at the time of his death.

The incident, as told to the Associated Press by this friend, was as follows: Baron von Maltzan in November, 1918, was First Secretary at the German legation at The Hague and as such was dispatched by Minister Rosen to Amerongen Castle to obtain personally the signed formal renunciation of the Kaiser to the throne.

For three days Baron von Maltzan was a guest of Count Bentinck, but the Emperor declined to receive him. On Nov. 28 the Baron, tired of waiting, declared that he would pack his grip and return to The Hague to report to the Berlin Government that the Emperor had declined to sign the official renunciation, announcement of which had been made on Nov. 9.

As the Baron was about to bid adieu to Count Bentinck, he encountered William II, who wore a gray field uniform, in the hall of the first floor of the castle. The exiled monarch halted as Baron von Maltzan bowed and, looking sharply at him, said in an injured voice: "You, too, belong to the rascals of the Foreign Office who cheated and lied to me throughout my reign."

INQUIRY STARTED INTO PLANE CRASH

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Sept. 24.—Preparations were under way today to take the body of Baron Ago von Maltzan, German Ambassador to the United States, who was killed with five others in an airplane crash near Schleis, Thuringia, yesterday, to Gross Lucknow, Mecklenburg, where it will be entombed in the family vault.

In the meantime Government aviation experts and officers of the German Lufthansa (air corporation) were trying to ascertain the cause of the crash. It is considered doubtful, however, whether the mystery will ever be cleared up, as the plane is a heap of twisted, only the wing which broke loose lying intact 20 feet away. A fence has been erected about the wreck to prevent its disturbance.

Plane Made Daily Trips. The plane in which the Ambassador flew to his post was familiar to the inhabitants of the surrounding country, who were accustomed to watching it pass every morning on its way from Berlin to Munich.

Yesterday they were struck by the low altitude. Some say they were looking for it on the Cassel-Greif when it took an upward court. As the plane approached Schleis it was seen to be flying unsteadily, and when over Heinrichsdorf it was seen to be to see the wings suddenly fold upward. The plane rolled over and fell to the crash.

She received by return mail enough money to buy a new typewriter. She promptly wrote a letter of thanks to the dictator, sent it to the local paper and asked them to print it on the front page. They did.

FRANK KEENAN, ACTOR, SUE BY YOUNG WIFE FOR DIVORCE

He Is 71, She Is 26; She Asks for $500 a Week Alimony and Fees.

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 24.—Frank Keenan, veteran actor, playwright and director, yesterday was made the defendant in a suit for divorce filed by Margaret White Keenan. The suit states that when the Keenans were married in Honolulu in June, 1924, the actor was 68 years old, his bride 23.

Mrs. Keenan says that he promised her half of his real and personal property if she would give up her profession as a musician and marry him. She charges that he frequently was intoxicated. They separated Sept. 11, 1926.

Declaring that Keenan, as a film actor, director and author, had been capable of earning $7000 a month, Mrs. Keenan asks for $500 a week alimony and $2900 for attorney fees. She declares her husband's stocks and bonds worth $40,000 and personal property valued at $60,000.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The Joke Is on Farmer Brown's Boy

Blest and triple blest is he Who on himself a joke can see.
—Farmer Brown's Boy

FARMER BROWN'S BOY had declared he was going to find out who was stealing such queer things as towels, doormats, aprons and pieces of carpet. His plan was very simple. He would leave some things of this kind around and keep watch. So he got another old piece of carpet from his mother, just a little strip, and this he hung on the clothes line. Then he went over to the barn to clean and dress a harness. This hung on pegs just inside the door, and by sitting on an upturned box and leaving the door open Farmer Brown's Boy could work and at the same time keep watch of that old piece of carpet. Now Farmer Brown's Boy had taken off a solid pair of overalls and had put on a clean pair. The old overalls he had hung on a nail on a post in the dooryard. This post was where he couldn't see it from the place he was sitting. Farmer Brown's Boy is a great whistler. He likes to whistle when he's at work. He says it makes the work go easier. So as he cleaned and dressed and polished the harness he whistled. Then it occurred to him that no one was likely to try to steal that piece of carpet while he was whistling. He stopped whistling. Every now and then he would glance out to the clothes line to see if that carpet was still there. At any time it was.

Farmer Brown's Boy could work and at the same time keep watch of that old piece of carpet

Boy went out. In a few minutes he was back. "Those overalls are not in the barn," said he. "I had no idea they would be. I absolutely hung them on that post." "Then," said Mother Brown, "the thief you were going to catch by watching that piece of carpet has turned the joke on you and has stolen your overalls. You may just make up your mind that that is the answer to this puzzle. You'd better go look out the window and see if that carpet is there yet." "Farmer Brown's Boy looked out of the window. The piece of carpet still hung on the clothesline. Evidently the overalls were preferred to the piece of carpet, or else the thief was clever enough to know that the carpet was being watched.

Household Novelties

Green corn is sheared from the cob with a new crank-operated tool that can be clamped to a kitchen table. Pressure of a pedal with a foot lifts the lid of a new hamper for soiled clothing. An inventor has designed a knife to cut cheese evenly on dining tables. A patent has been granted for a cooking utensil having a slot in the end of the handle to hold a spoon out of the way of the lid of the device and prevent it becoming heated.

Ham Timbales With Honey.

Half cup minced ham, one tablespoon minced celery leaves, one tablespoon minced onion, one tablespoon butter, one egg beaten, one-half cup bread crumbs, one and one-quarter cup milk, salt, paprika. Mix the ingredients well together and turn the mixture into greased ramekins. Place them in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until the mixture is firm.

Madame Jenny, Paris Couturier, sees the passing of standardization in fashions, and is pleased. She believes women will accept the new elaboration that is being offered them and that revolutionary changes are over.

By MME. JENNY.

PARIS. I MUST candidly confess I am glad to see the end of standardized fashions. Elegance is infinitely more pleasing than uniformity. I am sure the smartest women will adopt the new elaboration we dressmakers are offering them. But the dressmakers must educate the sense of women back to standards of elegance. The skirt and jersey mode was too easy. So was the simple chiffon evening gown. It was pretty and light for certain summer occasions, but the gathering of women all dressed in plain colored chiffons did not give an habille effect. It was dainty without being smart.

I cannot help blaming the leaders of fashion a little for having been led away by this craze. After all, we dressmakers look to them for co-operation. The average woman does not get a chance to see the great designers' collections in Paris. She expects the smart women of her own city to give her a lead. When they turn out dressed to a pattern it is only natural that she should follow suit. For the morning I agree that the smartest clothes are the simplest. But that does not mean they should all be alike. The cleverness of designers consists in supplying a number of attractive details which make each woman individual even in the simplest suit. Such details are varied collars and fancy cuffs, even on a jersey sweater; incrustations of different materials, and colors, fine hand tucks, amusing little bells, decorative and well-placed pockets, scarves, yokes and different forms of ties.

The Woman Must Help

The woman aids the inventive genius of the dressmaker by choosing her accessories with care. She can make the plainest tailor-made dress doubly smart by wearing just the right hat with a suitable bag and well-chosen shoes. With the best will in the world the dressmaker cannot do everything. She can supply the finest materials, the most perfect and carefully studied details, but even these will not spell chic unless the woman who has bought an expensive costume will take the pains to select just the right accessories. Who has not seen a charming ensemble marred by a hat that was meant to be worn with something entirely different, and by a carelessly chosen pair of shoes?

This season fashion is very kind to women. There is something for every type and every figure. We do not ask the woman of 50 to make herself ridiculous by dressing in a mode that was designed for a 17. Take, for instance, the Princess line that I have included in my new collection, of which two quite different examples are illustrated on this page. It is flattering to young, slim figure, but it is also becoming to the older woman. It gives additional slimness to the figure. It is dignified. Above all, it must be beautifully made, so the woman who wears it does not suffer the mortification of seeing it cheaply reproduced at every turn. In the bolero fashion we have something quite different. This is perfect for the woman who is a little too slim. Its evase line gives curves instead of angles to the figure. The upward movement in front I have accentuated with an applied point, carrying the front of the skirt up onto the corsage in some cases. This point is a help to the stouter woman who likes the bolero fashion. It, too, is slimming, and, after all, that is what most women ask of the mode. When one is as slender as a mannequin, dressing presents difficulties.

Gold and Silver Threads

I like the present fashion of introducing a gold or silver thread into the weave of woolen fabrics. My friends M. Rodier and M. Meyer have given us a wonderful selection of these rich materials that do so much to bring back that elegance that should always be the keynote of Paris fashions. We dressmakers are very much inspired by the fabrics from which we create our models. Personally, I never use a drawing in making my collection. I drape the material on the mannequin. Sometimes a mere glimpse of a beautiful fabric will inspire me with a new model. That is why the French mode retains its supremacy. Great as are the achievements of other countries in some fields, I think everyone will admit that taste is born in France. The proof is in the fact that buyers from all over the world continue to flock to Paris to purchase our creations. This inspiration is partly a heritage from the glorious past and partly the result of national atmosphere.

Those who have made a careful study of dress in Paris since the war will realize that every fashion is an evolution of something that has gone before. Sometimes it takes two or three seasons to come to perfection. Sometimes one house will develop and improve it as time goes on. There is no sharp line of demarcation between the fashions of one season and the next. Our taste has been educated up to the point where change must be gradual. Revolutionary changes are only produced by necessity. It was the demand for uniformity in the curfew of masculine tailors in dress. The need for that is over, and we are gradually working back to the standard of elegance that is suited to a period of leisure.

Retaining Femininity.

I do not believe in trousers for women. We must retain femininity. The beauty of present fashions lies in the fact that they set off the beauty of woman's natural figure line in the first consideration. I would always sacrifice novelty to line. It is the secret of good dressing. After all, the fashion in which most women look their best is the fashion which succeeds and comes to stay.

All kinds of fantasy in color are possible without any sacrifice of form. Color is a very important factor in the choice of a becoming wardrobe. Women should study their complexion carefully and choose their gowns in the kind of lighting in which they will be worn. To be really successful they should also bear in mind the surroundings that will form their ultimate setting. A fitting room is designed to make all colors look well. When choosing your gowns you must use imagination and try to visualize the effect they will produce in your own drawing room or boudoir and how they will look in the atmospheric conditions of your native city.

I am a great believer in freedom of movement. There is no grace in the tight skirt. For that reason you will find that most of my models have a flare. Short skirts have come to stay, because they are so practical. But they should not be too short. When they are, it is not the fault of the dressmaker. Some of our clients exaggerate. We do our best to convince them that the knee is not beautiful, but some of them persist in revealing it. The ideal length for a skirt is one that just shows the inward curve of the calf well below the knee. That is more becoming than a skirt half way to the ankles, but believe me, anything shorter is ugly and tends to be ridiculous.

The Charm of Variety

Afternoon and evening dresses should be as rich and varied as possible. This gives women an opportunity to develop and improve their individual taste. Beadwork and embroidery, beautiful lace, rich and exquisite laces and a careful attention to detail make the present fashions for formal dress extremely varied. I share the views of Jean Patou on artificial jewelry. I think it is abominable, especially when it takes the form of artificial diamonds. If you cannot possess real diamonds and pearls, there are many less precious stones that have the beauty of being genuine and whose color and form add elegance to the gown with which they are worn. The woman who can afford to wear gowns from a first-class house can also afford these jewels. But let her wear none at all rather than meretricious imitations.

Having talked a great deal about dress, I should like to add a word about shoes. Of course, the ideal of chic is to have shoes specially designed to go with each dress or ensemble. I like to see shoes of fine and elaborate workmanship with a beautiful gown. They should, however, be studied in order to be perfectly suitable to the gown; otherwise it is better to choose perfectly simple ones that show their perfection in their shape.

Furs play an important part in the present season's fashions, both for day dress and for evening cloaks. I have the same views on furs that I have on jewels. I prefer the real thing. I have always advocated the complicated and skillful working of real skins. Such workmanship shows that thought and invention have been used in the production of a model. A great many flat furs will be seen this season—breitschwanz, shaved lamb astrakhan, caracul and mole skin. Fox and lynx are always charming as a coat trimming, but mink and marten are becoming and very rich.

The Place for Furs.

Evening cloaks, when not of ermine, mink or chinchilla, are smartest if they are made to wear with one particular dress and no other, or at most with two that repeat the same coloring if in a different manner. This is, of course, a counsel of perfection and is meant for the woman rich enough to buy anything she pleases. Those who have to study economy cannot do better than choose a coat of one of the beautiful laces that are so smart this season. Gold is charming with most gowns, and if it is trimmed with fur and no distinctive color is introduced into the pattern of the lace, one such coat, with a possible alternative choice of black velvet, will see you through the season and give you the solution which the sense of being chic inspires.

Honey Salad Dressing.

Three-cup vinegar, one-third cup honey, paprika, one-quarter cup vinegar, one teaspoon mustard, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon flour, 2 egg yolks. Heat the honey and water in a double boiler. Mix the dry ingredients with the vinegar and add to the first mixture. Pour a small amount of the hot mixture over the beaten yolks and return to the boiler. Cook all together until clear. This dressing is improved by adding one-third cup sour whipped cream just before serving. A honey dressing is particularly good with fruit salad.

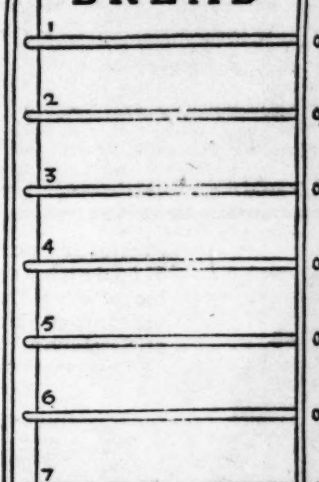

Cabbage Relish.

One quart cabbage, chopped, one quart green tomatoes, chopped, one pint white onions, chopped, one cup red pepper, minced, one cup sugar, five tablespoons white mustard seed, one tablespoon celery seed, salt, one quart vinegar, one cup green pepper, minced. The cabbage and tomatoes should be soaked separately overnight in salt water (one-fourth cup salt to one water). In the morning drain the vegetables and add the other ingredients. Let them stand for two hours. Simmer the mixture until it is clear and seal it in hot, clean jars.

Tests by Pittsburg scientists have shown that a woman of average weight loses about an ounce an hour in moisture exuded by the lungs and skin, and a man about one-third more.

The BENSON MURDER CASE

S.S. VAN DINE © CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

THIS HAS HAPPENED.
A woman's gloves and handbag were found in the room where the murder was committed. In Benson's bedroom are found his false teeth and a toupee. A policeman reports having seen a big gray automobile outside Benson's house at midnight. Later Markham came in. Vance that the handbag had been traced to Miss St. Clair.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY.

CHAPTER X.

MARKHAM'S manner was preoccupied, and during the rest of the lunch we spoke but little.

As we sat in the club's lounge-room later having our smoke, Markham, who had been standing dejectedly at a window close to the right of Benson's room, came over to us. He was a full-sized man of about 50, with gray hair and a sturdy, erect body.

He greeted Vance and me with a casual bow, and turned at once to the District Attorney.

"Markham, I've been thinking things over constantly since our lunch yesterday," he said, "and there's one suggestion I think I might make. There's a man named Leander Pyffe who was very close to Alvin; and it is possible he could give you some helpful information. His name didn't occur to me yesterday, for he doesn't live in the city; he's on Long Island somewhere—Port Washington, I think. It's just a hunch, but I think it's worth a try to figure out anything that makes sense in this terrible affair."

He drew a quick, resolute breath, as if to check some involuntary sign of emotion. It was evident that the man, for all his habitual passivity of nature, was deeply moved.

"That's a good suggestion, Major," Markham said, making a notation on the back of a letter. "I'll get after it immediately."

Vance, who, during this brief interchange, had been gazing unconcernedly out of the window, turned and addressed himself to the Major.

"How about Col. Ostrander? I've seen him several times in the company of your brother."

Major Benson made a slight gesture of deprecation. "He's only an acquaintance. He'd be of no value."

Then he turned to Markham. "I don't imagine it's time even to hope that you've run across anything."

Markham took his cigar from his mouth, and turning it about in his fingers, contemplated it thoughtfully.

"I wouldn't say that," he remarked after a moment. "I've managed to find out whom your brother dined with Thursday night; and I know that this person returned home with him shortly afterward. He paused as if deliberating the wisdom of saying more. Then: 'The fact is, I don't need a great deal more evidence than I've got already to go before the grand jury and ask for an indictment.'"

A look of surprised admiration flashed in the major's sombre face. "Thank God for that, Markham!" he said. Then, setting his heavy jaw, he placed his hand on the district attorney's shoulder. "Go the limit—for my sake!" he urged. "If you want me for all time, I'll be here at the club late."

With this he turned and walked from the room.

facture whatever clues suit his purpose? "Your detective seems wholly unwilling to admit that the surface appearance of a crime may be deliberately deceptive, or that the clues may have been planted for the definite purpose of misleading him."

"I'm afraid," Markham pointed out, with an air of indignant irony, "that we'd convict very few criminals if we were to ignore all inculcated evidence, except circumstances and irretrievable inferences."

"I agree, you know, crimes are not witnessed by outsiders."

"That's your fundamental error, don't you know," Vance observed impassively. "Every crime is witnessed by outsiders, just as is every work of art. The fact that no one sees the criminal, or the artist, actually at work, is wholly inconsequential. The modern investigator of crime would doubtless refuse to believe that Rubens painted the 'Descent from the Cross' in the cathedral at Antwerp if there was sufficient circumstantial evidence to indicate that he had been away on diplomatic business, for instance, at the time it was painted. And yet, my dear fellow, such a conclusion would be preposterous. Even if the 'evidence' as to his being away were so irresistible as to be legally overpowering, the picture itself would prove conclusively that Rubens did paint it. Why? For the simple reason, d'ye see, that no one but Rubens could have painted it. It bears the indelible imprint of his personality and genius—and his alone."

"I'm not an aesthete," Markham reminded him, a trifle testily. "I'm merely a practical lawyer, and when it comes to determining the authorship of a crime, I prefer tangible evidence to metaphysical hypotheses."

"Your preference, my dear fellow," Vance returned blandly, "will inevitably involve you in all manner of embarrassing errors."

He slowly lit another cigarette, and blew a wreath of smoke toward the ceiling.

"Consider, for example, your conclusion in the present murder case," he went on, in his emotionless drawl. "You are laboring under the grave misconception that you know the person who probably killed the unrepentable Benson. You admitted as much to the major; and you told him you had nearly enough evidence to ask for an indictment."

"No doubt, you do possess a number of what the learned solons of today regard as convincing clues. But the truth is, don't you know, you haven't your eye on the guilty person at all. You're about to level some poor girl who had nothing whatever to do with the crime."

Markham swung about sharply. "So?" he retorted. "I'm about to bedevil an innocent person, eh? Since my mistake and I are the only ones who happen to know what evidence we hold against her perhaps you will explain by what occult process you acquired your knowledge of this person's innocence."

FALL OUT OF LOVE AND INTO TROUBLE

By WINIFRED BLACK

H E'S an awfully nice man, a ripping good sort in every way. There couldn't be a better husband."

She says the movie actress. "But I'm out of love with him. That's all."

So she's getting a divorce, or trying to get a divorce. I wonder if the court will give it to her? And when she has her divorce—what then?

Another husband? How long will she stay in love with him, I wonder?

"In love." What does she mean by that? Does she think life is nothing but thrills and infatuation, and does she suppose that marriage is nothing but a thrill fest? Is there no such thing as duty and an honest fight to keep the promise you've made, even if it is hard? How many men and women are what this woman calls "in love" after the first year or so of marriage?

Loving your husband is one thing—being "in love" with him is another. Does this young person want to stay sweet eighteen all her natural life, pray tell? How funny she'll look at 40, won't she—hunting for thrills. At 50 people will laugh at her, and there won't be much of a thrill in that, will there? What a queer idea it is, this "thrill" business.

All right for a while, but in the name of common sense, my dear young person, do you want to go right on playing with paper dolls all your natural life?

Not in love with him any more—well, what of it?

You married him, didn't you, and he's kept his side of the bargain. Are you going to smash all his dreams and yours, too, just for your little whim of the moment? What if business partners did that? What if your mother had said some fine day, when you were little, "Well, little Mary was all right when she was a baby, but she doesn't interest me now," and went away and never saw you again. Your brother isn't so much fun to you since he married, is he? Are you going to divorce him and get rid of him forever?

What do you think marriage is, anyhow? A queer little temporary game? What if you had children, would you leave them like that? And how about yourself? What if you don't find someone to fall in love with you the very first minute, and if he does fall in love with you, what if he falls out again and says, "Good-by, lady," just like that?

Won't you see the day when you'll wish you had your good, kindly, understanding husband back again? Will he come back if you whistle to him? Not if he's a wise man. Real men don't give their hearts to idle women to use as a football, remember that. Wake up, little girl, you're asleep and dreaming.

Life isn't a play, it's a real thing, and you can't live it at all until you come down to earth. That's the way to find real happiness—play the game and keep the rules, or else somebody will tell you to run away and play all alone. How will you like that, when you are tired and lonely with no one to turn to for comfort or companionship? Marriage is a partnership and you must give as much as you take. Selfishness will never get you anywhere. Before you hurt anyone as you undoubtedly would hurt your husband if you left him, put yourself in his place. If the tables were turned, what would you do?

It was a hard blow for the visiting attorney. As he emerged from the presence of the Court into an anteroom, his disappointment led him to make audible criticism of the decision just rendered.

An ancient colored attendant touched him softly upon the arm: "Suh," warned the old Negro in a reverential whisper, "suh, I'd kindly suggest to you that you be a little mo' careful in your remarks 'twell after you gits outside of this 'ere buildin'." Because, Mister, if you gits yo'self in contempt of its code you ain't got no wahrs to appeal except'n to Gawd Almighty!"

ADmits SECRET MEETINGS WITH MRS. LILLIENDAHL

Willis Beach, 50, Held as Witness in Doctor's Murder, Says He Wrote 'Peggy Anderson' Letters.

Vineland (N. J.) Poultryman Confesses Relations With Widow Who Avers Negroes Killed Husband.

By the Associated Press.
MAYS LANDING, N. J., Sept. 24.—Willis Beach, 50-year-old poultry farmer of Vineland, N. J., has confessed his relations with Mrs. Lilliendahl, widow of Dr. William A. Lilliendahl, murdered Sept. 15. It is announced tonight by Richard Black, special investigator for the state.

Beach was taken here from Hammoncton, N. J., where he was arrested as a material witness and questioned by detectives and State police.

Beach confessed, Black declared, that he had written the "Peggy Anderson" letters to Mrs. Lilliendahl; that he had met the physician's wife frequently in a secluded spot and that he and Mrs. Lilliendahl had used a hollow oak tree as a place to conceal correspondence.

Late tonight Beach was released from jail under $5,000 bail, furnished by his brother, Roy.

Mrs. Lilliendahl has said from the first that she and her husband when they were in their automobile were attacked by Negroes who killed Dr. Lilliendahl and robbed her.

Beach was taken today to an oak tree in South Vineland where, it is alleged, he had been seen talking with Mrs. Lilliendahl. Then he was confronted by the South Vineland Postmaster, who declared that Beach received mail which had been written by Mrs. Lilliendahl in the postoffice.

Thus far the police have been unable to get a definite statement from Mrs. Lilliendahl, they say, on her reported correspondence with Beach.

D. Commerat Himkie, assistant prosecutor, said today that Mrs. Lilliendahl would be asked to reenact the crime and when she is taken to the scene of the murder it will be in the Lilliendahl car how locked up in Hammoncton.

"This will take place as soon as the workmen have finished hacking the underbrush and hoisting the found in an effort to find the reason why the two bullets hit the head of Dr. Lilliendahl," Himkie said. "Reports from the Vineland Bank show that Dr. Lilliendahl drew out $25 which is contrary to Mrs. Lilliendahl's statement that the physician had $200 at the time of the crime."

Mrs. Lilliendahl is under $25,000 bond as a material witness.

MAN POSING AS PROFESSOR SHOT AFTER OFFERING CHECK

Chicago Policeman Pursues Alleged Forger Who Opened Account Under Assumed Name.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Dashing from the First National Bank when threatened with arrest, Joseph Ross, who posed as a former University of Chicago professor, was shot and probably fatally wounded today by a bank policeman who pursued him through Saturday shopping crowds to the corner of Madison and Dearborn streets. There Ross was overpowered by half a dozen policemen as he tried to run into a department store.

Ross, 37 years old, formerly of Pittsburgh, fled through the crowd after presenting a check to be cashed. He was pursued by a bank policeman who fired several shots as one of them striking him in the back. Ross paused momentarily but resumed his flight, knocking down pedestrians as he ran.

Ross had posed at the bank as Dr. Rudolph Altrochi, former professor at the University of Chicago, now connected with Brown University. A month ago, Prof. Altrochi lost a check for $200 drawn on the First National Bank of Kansas City and endorsed by him. Ross presented the check to open an account at the First National Bank here. Payment on the check had been stopped by Prof. Altrochi.

He is expected to be taken to the hospital after being shot by the policeman. Arrangements were made at the telephone exchange to call the police station.
